A BI-WEEKLY LOOK AT THE BUSINESS & POLITICS OF HEALTH CARE IN NEW JERSEY

Increase, and Improve, Pregnancy-Related Care for All

Today I'm turning my blog over to Kate Shamszad, MS, MPH, who is a Senior Program Officer in the Quality Institute's Medicaid Policy Center. The Medicaid Policy Center delivers independent research, analysis, and policy solutions to improve health outcomes while also controlling health care costs.

New Jersey is stronger when we can all make decisions about our families, our health, and our futures, and live and work with dignity. All of us should be able to plan when and if to have children and raise the children we have with dignity and respect in supportive communities. When we ensure that everyone — regardless of income, zipcode, insurance coverage, or immigration status — gets affordable and high-quality health care, the health and well-being of our community — and our state — improves.

The evidence is overwhelming that high-quality comprehensive pregnancy-related care leads to lower infant mortality and healthier babies. The fiscal benefits are significant in the short term and the long term. And the human benefits are incalculable.

New Jersey policymakers recognize the value of contraceptive access, as evidenced by their investment in family planning in the state budget. It is also clear that they value prenatal care, seen in their creation of the Supplemental Prenatal Care program two decades ago to extend funding to increase access to prenatal care for people who are undocumented in New Jersey. The program provides free or low-cost prenatal services at hospital clinics and FQHCs.
