EVIDENCE-BASED TOOLS TO BUILD HEALTHIER COMMUNITIES

Reducing Social Isolation Program

TOOLKIT

 WHAT IS SOCIAL ISOLATION?

Social Isolation is the lack of social connections which can lead to loneliness and have serious long-term effects on overall health and wellness. Health risks associated with social isolation and loneliness include premature death, increased risk of dementia, and increased rates of depression, anxiety, and suicide. Social isolation has increased because of the pandemic and the need for social distancing. Even prior to the pandemic, 43% of adults age 60 or older reported feeling lonely, and those numbers have only increased over the past year.

Residents can use AARP's Social Isolation Risk Assessment to gauge their risk.

 BENEFITS OF CONNECTEDNESS

There are many benefits of being socially connected and integrated into a community. Individuals who have stronger social connections are happier, have fewer mental health concerns, and have better overall health outcomes. The New Jersey Health Care Quality Institute's Mayors Wellness Campaign \(MWC\) has developed a guide to creating a volunteer-based program to address the issue of social isolation in your community and get people connected. Older adults are the target recipients of this program; however, volunteer opportunities also benefit the volunteers themselves. Volunteering can reduce the risk of depression, create a sense of purpose, and helps individuals stay mentally and physically active, all of which are important supports needed at this time.

Physical Health and Nutrition Food Security

What Is Food Security?

Food security is when every person in a household has consistent access to enough food to live an active, healthy life.

What does food security look like in NJ?

Disparities in food security by race & ethnicity

Group	Food Insecure Percentage
Residents	1 in 12
Children	1 in 10
Black Households	14%
Latino Households	18%
White Households	5%

Food insecurity is higher among: low income communities; Black and Hispanic households; households with children; and single parent homes.

While risk factors for food insecurity include limited access to full-service supermarkets, public transportation and lack of affordable housing, a majority of people report not being able to afford food.

Environment & Health Land Use Planning for Sustainable, Healthy Communities

What is land use planning?

Land use planning is the process of determining how land will be used and developed. Local leaders, property owners, and developers can consider things like promoting physical activity, accessibility for people of all abilities, protecting air and water quality, and reducing noise pollution, when undertaking the planning and permitting process. These decisions help make communities healthier places to live, work, and play. They also help older residents stay in their communities.

How does land use planning and policies impact community health?

Social determinants of health are the conditions in the environments where people live, work, and play which impact their health. Many towns across the county have adopted a Health in All Policies approach to improving health outcomes by including health considerations into decision-making across sectors and policy areas. The goal is to consider how any decisions made may impact the health of a community and its residents.

Stafford Rain Barrel Program

Municipal leaders play a crucial role in shaping local policies which impact the health and wellness of their residents. For instance, land use designs and policies can improve walkability, safety, and sense of community while decreasing isolation, crime, and stress. By improving activity-friendly routes to various places in a community, local leaders will not only increase access to grocery stores, health care services, employment, and parks, but will encourage physical activity, which can reduce the risk of chronic and mental illnesses.

FOLLOW THEIR LEAD

Stafford Township has made great progress towards preserving their environment and improving the town's water quality. The Mayor and Township Administrator collaborated with the Township Council and Engineer, residents, Department of Public Works, Rutgers University, and the NJ Office of Emergency Management to develop a Stormwater Management Plan.

This led to the replacement of sewage lines, reduced flooding, enhanced transportation routes, and improved 200 acres of waterway. Stafford has launched stormwater education workshops for residents which highlight how individual actions can contribute to community health and improvement. They have also distributed over 80 rain barrels to residents.
